

ABSTRACT

A graphical user interface between a client system used by a user to access a computer service and a host system of the computer service includes a list of other users of the computer service selected by the user as significant to the user, a list of computer
5 resources stored on the host system by the user, and a list of links to data content, that have been selected by the user.

40188498.doc